3c. In 1999, twenty-five San Diego State University students were caught cheating on a Business Ethics Quiz. A student in an earlier class took an extra copy and gave it to the evening class. Many students were graduating seniors. All cheaters earned an F.

Punishment ranged from suspension from the university to expulsion from the university. Suspension prevented students from walking and a period of time had to go by before they were able to retake the course. Expulsion means they were kicked out of a state or UC system for 5 years.

Do you believe the suspension and/or expulsion was an appropriate punishment for cheating on a quiz? Briefly explain.
